We are still conquering, and we will continue to conquer, until Alcohol, the traiter, shall throw off his armour and deliver his sword with his rapidly diminishing army into our hands in humble subjugation. Brethren, never despair, never become discouraged, and never dishearten. If we fail in one rescue, let it only nerve us the more stronger for a renewal of an attack at another day. If we err in our judgment, let strenuous efforts be put forth to correct, and not repeat the error. Have faith—let union triumph and we will eventually triumph. Allow no personal predjudice or friendship to interfere with our duty in the sacred Hall of Temperance. If two Brothers are guilty of any violation of our Constitution, shield not the one and punish the other, especially, when the time was [illegible] tution, and you will perceive [illegible] not our whole power to all [illegible] shown this? Has not the [illegible] era of Garrison Lodge, that [illegible] and devoted followers of [illegible] unity, which this Lodge has rescued from the drunkard's grave and perdition, proven conclusive of this? Has not the prosperity and reputation of this gallant little band of heroes in this hall plainly indicated this? Has the collective contents of the 2d and 3d Regiments of '61-'62, and the Battalions of today, with their guard house records, been sufficient to convince you of this? Has not the recent recruiting to our ranks, and the eager signing of our muster rolls by our comrades of the First Nevada Cavalry demonstrated this? Has not their faithful allegiance to our duties dispelled all fears of the dissolution of our union? If not, my Dear Brethren, let me refer to our past experiences and career. This of itself, for many of us, is sufficient merely to name, without entering into any minuteness or particularizing of events which have occurred during the period. How many of you, my Brethren, sitting in this sacred hall of Temperance have, since your affiance herewith, passed an unavoidable hour within the walls of yon guard-house? How many of you have received a reprimand from your commanding officers for disgraceful deportment? How many of you have been conveyed to the Provost guard quarters, in town? How many of you have been arrested by the City police? How many of you have been guilty of violating the Camp regulations? I think I can safely say that one-nineteenth part cannot be enumerated with the above. Cast your eye over the thousands of newspapers—four-fifths of the long catalogue of crimes therein noted are the results of intemperance.

Rum, my Brethren, I may say, is the root of evil; once you become addicted to its use you become a stranger to all the noble and enviable attainments within the reach of man, you disregard your honor and your integrity, your sense of shame and virtue becomes indelibly stained, your reputation is shattered, your money is soon parted with, your associates can be numbered only with the vile, the dissolute and the degraded, your mind becomes deranged, your thoughts scattered, your constitution at first impaired and eventually ruined, your life a scene of misery, wretchedness and woe, and confidence in you is abolished, your word is disregarded, your domestic happiness is gone, your family love is lessened, your wife, mother and sister are made heartbroken; [illegible] dissipation and debauchery. You by the taste of the cup, place the misery, ruin and [illegible] you mortgage your [illegible] that home circle of [illegible] you bring [illegible] your fellow [illegible] your [illegible] wrong [illegible] Lodge, but as [illegible] another, that [illegible] will remain. Good [illegible] lifeless [illegible] brave, stand [illegible] our. Let [illegible] every [illegible] be [illegible] post; let every word, deed [illegible] shown to the entire world that Good Templars we are, and as such, we will be to the end of life. Let us paint "union" upon our banners, let our meetings be conducted in union, let all our proceedings be enacted in union, and let the union of Garrison Lodge be perpetual, and remain intact; allow no opportunity to pass whereby we can receive a [illegible] from the baneful influence of alcohol; but, when we find an unworthy fellow member punish without partiality, and if by reformation he is ever after worthy, rescue him. If one expel one Brother for the violation of any of our Articles of Constitution, do not make a lord of creation of another equally guilty and accountable, but deal justly to all. Let every member be true and firm to all the obligations to which he or she has assented. Should they be assailed or tempted, let us only be the more steadfast, and let no precaution for their remaining inviolable be left unenforced. Thus will we stand before the world, a united, fearless and bold band—we will be patriots to our country and patriots to our cause. Thus will the banner of Temperance be as dear to us as is the flag of our Union. And I enjoin upon you all to cherish each to your life's end. Let not one star of the latter be obliterated by the blackening cloud of rebellion, nor one of the former be stained with the dark canopy of drunkenness. Resolve that no act of ours shall ever cast one shade of dishonor upon either, that our Union shall be preserved, that the cause of Temperance shall never know the want of Veterans or Recruits at our hands.

I have already demanded too much of your attention—I will now close and may the prosperity of Garrison Lodge never be dampened by the shrides of adversity, and may you my brethren one and all remain steadfast and zealous members and as hearty co-operators in the glorious cause of Temperance during your natural lives.

Respectfully yours in F. M. & C.

F. LIVINGSTON.

UNION

...THURSDAY MORNING, JAN. ...

...to the Public.

The apostles of polygamy declare themselves to be the unfortunate individuals, and endeavor to persuade the people to believe the delusion; but, ...ct inquiry, we have failed to find ...

Indeed, our experience has long since taught us that, wherever this favorite ...ctrine is found in force, the leaders, ...ere, were prone to set at naught the ...ommon decencies of life, which is sought to be accomplished through the credulity of the people. Something of the kind is now on the tapis for we have heard, the old ...ug bear of approaching dangers has recently been put on exhibition.

Now, the soldiers stationed in Utah, whom heroic self-sacrifices planted there in defiance of delight in regenerating an little less than savages, have mingled freely with the people during our sojourn among them, and we suppose they have found us to be most natural devils, after all; conducting ourselves very much after the manner of civilized people, and quite harmless withal if not annoyed. We certainly manage to get along very closely well with them when left to ourselves, and we can assure the timid, that they have no persecution to fear from any source not under the influence of those whom they, as we believe, too blindly trust and implicitly obey.

Persecution forsooth? It is the old cry of stop thief, which the malefactor is wont to use to turn attention from himself, when pursued by the officers of the law, and it is susceptible of demonstration that this pretence on the part of Church leaders is only an outcry to distract observation from their own offending. In proof of this, we might travel back through the record of events which have transpired in Utah during the last fifteen years, but we fear some of its pages would be stained with the finger-prints of crime, and having more recent evidence, we forego the unpleasant task at present, because unnecessary.

This is a point, the criminality of which, all Mormons have strenuously denied and its truth many seriously doubted, we believe; but, only a few days since, a couple of zealots, awaking from a Rip Van Winkle sleep of years, broke out in the stereotyped but somewhat obsolete style of denunciation, so much in fashion not long since with Mormon pulpit orators from the Church Dictator down, as amiable Bishop darkly threatening terrible things, accompanied with ominous hints of sudden takings off, while a most righteous judge stood ready to offer absolution for the uncommitted crime and to promise pardon for the deed when done. Tradition and more authentic records affirm that, in other times, such exhibitions were swiftly followed by the event foretold, the hapless victims and such as bloody vengeance spared seeking vainly for redress, or were terrified into silence by threats of a similar fate reserved for them. But the times have changed somewhat and now these hellish exhortations to crime fall on unheeding and unwilling ears. The fiend, that then was wont to haunt the fugitive's trail with assassins in the garb of Indians and whose anger could only be satisfied with the blood of apostates or other victims, is now content to be appeased with offerings of gold

When the troops came into this Territory for the protection of its citizens as well as the routes of overland travel, from the raids of savages, how were we welcomed? It is true, when we had established ourselves in the vicinity of Salt Lake City, the people came among us in that friendly spirit, which we were anxious should exist, offering their productions freely for purchase, and our intercourse did fail to be of that pleasant ...lentless persecution, for no higher offense than permitting soldiers to visit their gardens and purchase the luxuries they afforded.

It has been the policy throughout to purchase all Government supplies direct from the people, to prevent contracts falling into the clutches of those Church ...rmonants, Brigham Young and his ...ers. Despite these honest endeavors ...ultures have withheld their proud appendix with Lincoln coin. To this day, no contract for supplies has succeeded, the fulfillment of which they could prevent. For this, the Government animals are now starving among the hills, and there are not a dozen of them fit for service which any day may make it necessary to perform. For this, we have been compelled to procure, more than a thousand miles away, the bread which these valleys furnish in abundance. We were mistaken—there is persecution in Utah, but Americans upon American soil, strangers in the land, whose only offence is that they are not believers in the apostles of polygamy. these, and not Mormons, are its victims.

Bishop Woolley Carries Out His Threats.

A couple of weeks since we published extracts from a sermon delivered by Bishop Woolley, in which he threatened to tear down the houses of those Mormons who harbored the ungodly Gentiles.

We had supposed, however, that the lecture he had received from his superiors would make him a little more careful in his language and conduct.

In this, we seem to have been mistaken. We are reliably informed that a few days ago two of the so-called teachers in Bishop Woolley's ward (the 13th) called at a house owned by a member of the church and notified the owner that unless he turned out of doors certain parties who rented part of the premises, the house would be torn down.

We have the names of the parties concerned, and if the church or the civil authorities desire them, they can be furnished on application at this office. In the meantime we have only to suggest to Brother Woolley and his teachers and underlings, that they had better think twice before they undertake to carry out their threat.

If the civil law will grant no protection to such cases in Utah, somebody is very likely to get hurt, if any mob essays the task of molesting peaceable citizens, in their own houses.

The law properly administered is ample to correct evils, abate nuisances and protect society.

If Brother Woolley has any complaints, let him make them to the proper authorities, for it will not be wholesome for him to stand out on his own book.

We advise the threatened party to take a shot gun, with twelve buck shot in each barrel, and send them to hell, across lots, as Brigham would say. Protect your property, good people, be no longer the victims of the bloody leeches who are fattening on your toil.

By dispatches from Wilmington we learn that peace commissioners are on their way to that city from Richmond, with the view to effect the cessation of the present war.

A ...ing horse, valued at $5,000 was shot in New York lately. He had been seriously injured by the shafts of a sleigh colliding with his chest, and his owner ordered him shot to stop his misery.

It appears from a conversation with Mrs. Foote that she had a passport to ... Richmond three weeks ago. Senator Foote accompanied her, but without ... for the purpose of ... Over the Potomac. A Clarksburg, Western Virginia, dispatch states that the rebels, after the attack on Beverly, retreated towards Lewisburg. The citizens report that they captured over 400 prisoners, including two Lieut. Cols. The latter escaped, and some 200 stragglers have already come in, and a court martial will investigate the affair.

The Richmond Whig says: Grant is being reinforced on both the north and south of the James [illegible] by negro troops.

A Panama letter states that the rebel privateers Braisted and Lang are on the coast of Salvador awaiting an opportunity to pirate on American shipping.

Letters from Geo Seward, Sec'y and ... Telegraph Company, to Cyrus W. Field, after alluding to the absolute electrical perfection of the new cable manufactured in the States, that the amount is completed to the 30th of December. Seven hundred and fifty miles of cable are now being manufactured at the rate of eighty miles per week. It will be finished by the end of the first week in June. Two tanks are on board the Great Eastern for the storage of the cable and the third is rapidly progressing. There is no reason to doubt the cable will all be on board the ship and ready for sea with every appliance of the kind and in the best order. During the month of June, Mr. Seward has no doubt that, the cable will be successfully laid and worked.

Head-Quarters Army Potomac, }
January 13th. }

The utmost quiet still reigns along the lines in front of this army; even picket firing seems to be given up. Brig. Gen. Williams has been appointed Inspector General of the armies operating against Richmond.

Washington, Jan. 15th.

The Richmond Enquirer, of the 13th, contains the following from the Mobile Advertiser: The Yankees are about 4,000 strong, and are at the Franklin Mills, on Dog river, without transportation. Their supplies are received by way of Dog river, owing to the formation of the country, and their position is unassailable. Forces are in proper position to stop any move they may make. In a skirmish the other day three Yankees were killed and five captured.

On Friday last, says the Charleston Mercury, the Yankees, in an unknown force, are reported to have crossed New River, on the road to Grahamsville: their main body, however, is still in the neighborhood of Hardeesville. As yet their object is not developed. Wheeler is closely watching their movements.

The Richmond Despatch says: The freshet in the James river commenced falling about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, and in less than two hours had subsided, upwards of fifteen inches further than the small break in the canal, and was filling up the first and second stories of several buildings in the lower part of the city. We have not heard of any serious damage occurring therefrom. It is reported that the enemy, during the storm of last Tuesday, advanced their picket lines on our extreme right, south of Petersburg. Francis P. Blair, Sen., the Yankee Peace Commissioner, arrived in the city late on Wednesday night. He came into our lines at a point in front of Fort Harrison, held by the city battalion. He was delayed several hours on our lines, waiting for permission to come to the city, which was not procured 'till at a late hour of the night. Since his arrival he has been kept or has kept himself from the public eye. His movements and whereabouts are shrouded in mystery, and he is believed to be lodged at the Spotswood House. He has been met accidentally by several of his old acquaintances, their meetings were characterized by the utmost cordiality on both sides. He is said to have had interviews with the chief executive officers of the Government.

New York, Jan. 15th.

The Herald has further particulars of the rebel attack on Beverly, Western Virginia. On Wednesday morning, the attacking force was commanded by Gen. Wickham, of Rosser's division. The Union troops at the post consisted of the 34th Ohio Infantry and the 8th Ohio Cavalry, under Col. Forney, who were completely taken by surprise and outnumbered. The rebels rushed in suddenly, and about day break Cols. Forney and Conatt, and about 400 of their men were taken prisoners. Two Cols. about 200 men soon after succeeded in escaping and regaining the Union lines. The rebels made a short stay, and then retreated towards Lewisburg.

Richmond papers publish official reports of the defence of Fort Fisher and the surrounding works. The strength of the garrison and the damage done by the bombardment is not stated.

The Sentinel states that discord between Butler and Porter was the cause of our failure. One of the rebel prisoners says eight guns were disabled in Fort Fisher, and that the severe shelling drove the men to the casemates, where they fully expected an assault, and could have made but little resistance.

Washington, Jan. 15th.

The following announcement has been furnished for general publication:

Department of State, }
Washington, Jan. 15th. }

The President directs the undersigned to perform the painful duty of announcing to the people of the United States, that Edward Everett, distinguished, not more by his learning and eloquence than by his unsurpassed and disinterested labors of patriotism at a period of political disorder, departed this life at four o'clock this morning. The several Executive Departments of Government will cause the appropriate honors to be rendered to the memory of the deceased, at home and abroad, wherever the the National name and authority is known.

(Signed) W. H. SEWARD.

New York, Jan. 16th.

The Herald's Cumberland dispatch says: A cavalry expedition left Winchester on the 10th and proceeded as far as Berryville, twelve miles southward, without meeting any of the enemy except a few guerrillas. The command then proceeded to Milwood and found no rebels had been there for several weeks, and learned that Rosser's cavalry had gone into winter quarters at St. Tunstan.

By the Morning Star, from New Orleans the 7th: A number of expeditions have been sent out from Baton Rouge and other places to chastise the guerrillas along the Mississippi.

A Nashville telegram says the convention passed by nearly a unanimous vote the resolution, that no person shall be considered qualified to vote until he has taken a stringent oath declaring himself unreservedly in favor of the Union and all laws and the proclamations issued by the President since the war began.

New York, Jan. 16th.

The Times' special says: From an interview with Mrs. Senator Foote, it appears that the rebel Congress is slavishly subservient to Davis, and that when bills meet with opposition, a majority go into secret session and rush them through. that the character of the war had been changed by Davis and is now carried on for his own purposes; that unless it can be terminated to suit him and his school of politics, he will carry it on more bloody and barbarous than ever; that there is not the slightest prospect of Blair meeting with success. She also asserts that the great mass of the people want to come back into the Union under the Constitution, but are restrained by military power and as the freedom of the press in this particular is entirely gone, there is no way for them to express their views. It was for the purpose of serving these people that Foote endeavored to reach Washington. Mrs. Foote says those who serve in the Richmond Junta lives as well as ever, being supplied with all luxuries at comparatively small cost, Government paying the expenses.

New York, Jan. 16th.

The Herald's special says, Admiral Porter has sent a communication to the Navy Department, in which he responds to some of Butler's statements in regard to the naval part of the expedition delaying the attack on Fort Fisher, thus causing its failure. He says, the only work assigned to the navy was, to silence the rebel works, and that it did that effectually on the 24th and 25th of December, and that [illegible] ded the assault by [illegible] unfeasible and [illegible] so. He is of the opinion that [illegible] could easily have been taken by [illegible] if efforts had been made. The [illegible] says, Butler started on the expedition before the naval fleet was ready to operate and thus by exposing his transports to the new enemy warned [illegible] the danger. He also charges, that army portion of the enterprise [illegible] up in a very unmilitary manner.

New York, Jan. 16th.

The following abstract of Butler's report of the Wilmington expedition is received:

After embarking the forces on the transports, they were detained from the 8th to the 13th of December. Admiral Porter's fleet he arrived at the rendezvous off the new inlet on the coast on the 15th, where he waited until the 19th, where Porter arrived on the 19th. A wind sprang up making it impossible to land the troops, and by the advice of Porter the transports returned to Hampton Roads. For four days the wind blew a gale, during which time, the transports coaled and watered. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the 25th, Butler with the troops, arrived in sight of Fort Fisher, and found the naval fleet bombarding it, the powder vessel having been exploded on the morning before, and arrangements were made to land the troops on the next morning two or three miles above Fisher under cover of the gunboats as soon as the fire of the New Moon and Flag Pond Hill batteries had been silenced.

At this time Porter was sanguine that he had silenced Fisher, and was urged that were so to run by the fort into Cape Fear river, then the troops could land and hold the beach without fear of being shelled by the rebel gunboats. Porter replied that he would probably lose a gunboat by the torpedo in the attempt to run by, and was reminded that the army might lose a few hundred men by an assault, and as the boats would not weigh in the balance with the lives of these men, Porter declined going by and the expedition was deprived of the essential element of success.

At noon on the 25th, the batteries were reported silenced, the transports successfully landed their troops, Curtis' brigade was pushed within a few hundred yards of Fisher, capturing the half moon battery and its men. A skirmish line then advanced to within seventy-five yards of the Fort, the garrison being kept in bomb proofs by the naval fire. The personal examination of Butler of the fort showed it well protected by extensive stockade bastions, fifteen feet high and fifteen feet wide, and that no material damage had been done to the fort by the navy. During this time Ames and Davidson captured a number of prisoners, who reported two brigades of Hooke's division within two miles of the rear of his force, and these skirmishers actually engaged, and the remainder of Hooke's division had arrived at Wilmington, and were on the march, thus forming a force outside of the fort superior to Butler's. At this time, Weitzel reported to Butler that to assault the works would be impossible, with any prospect of success. This opinion coincided with General Butler's, and he ordered the troops to re-embark, and while preparations were making, fire from the navy having ceased, the guns of the fort were manned and a sharp fire of musketry, grape and canister swept the plain over which our column must have advanced.

On the 26th, having made all the [illegible] dispositions for getting troops on board, orders were issued for the fleet to sail as fast as they could get ready to Fortress Monroe. General Butler states that he learned from deserters and prisoners, that the supposition was when the expedition was planned, that Wilmington was denuded of troops to oppose Sherman, was correct and so at the time of the arrival of the army off Wilmington there were less than 400 men in Fort Fisher, and less than 1,000 within twenty miles, but the delay of three days in waiting the arrival of the navy and the further delay by the storm on the 26th and 27th and 28d, gave time for reinforcements to arrive from Richmond, and it was the immediate cause of the failure of the expedition. Gen. Grant's endorsement of the report shows that it was never contemplated that Butler should accompany the expedition, Gen. Weitzel being specially named as the commander.

Local Matters.

Messrs. Morris & Berger, at their counter in Rosenbaum & Newman's market, are selling butter, eggs, cheese, and all kinds of produce, of the best quality, at astonishingly low rates. Families would do well to their interest to patronize this firm.

Notwithstanding the selling out of the "California House," the Salt Lake and Mansion Houses are still crowded, and are more than ever sustaining their past reputation of being first class hotels.

The regular meetings of Garrison Lodge, No. 65, I. O. G. T., will be held this evening, and hereafter, in the quarters formerly occupied by company F, 3d Inf., C. V.

The general cry in camp at the present day is for "Maj. Bull and his safe." His arrival in camp would relieve a very general depression of spirits.

Messrs. Holladay & Halsey, Clark & Co., and Scott, Kerr & Co., are always busy in exchanging "dust and greenbacks."

While in town on Saturday last, we tasted the cakes made at the "City Bakery," and found them delicious."

Mr. Meeks' jewelry takes amazingly with the City and Camp people.

N. ANTON, Prop'r.

Ruby, Nevada,
January 4th, 1865.

Editor Pedlar:—Lest those living at a distance should forget the existence of our young settlement, your correspondent proposes keeping it "before the public." It would be a pity—nay a sin—to keep the speculating public in ignorance of the immense richness of the "find" in this District, as well as the rapid progress being made by pioneers of Ruby Valley. In my last I mentioned that the "Social" Company had their mill completed. Since then they have commenced crushing. The yield from their rock far exceeds their former anticipations. It averages over six hundred dollars per ton. This exceeds the yield from the celebrated "Gould & Curry," more than six to one. That the owners of the "Gilligan" lode, will soon realize a fortune from their claim, there is little doubt. Mr. Fuller, of the "Washoe" Co., arrived here to-day with machinery for a new mill. He will commence building immediately. Mr. Fuller is an energetic gentleman, and will push things ahead briskly. The "St. Louis" Company are also going to put up a mill, or rather getting out timber for one. By the end of May we will have three mills in "full blast." The "Gilligan" Company are getting out magnificent rock. By the by, I learn from a private source, that the former owners of this ground (the old "Star" Company) intend contesting the ownership of the ground with the present Company. If such is their intention, they will find it rather a tough job. Good lawyers can easily be found who will defend the case for a small interest. Now, would it not be much better for men to expend the requisite amount of money, (50 cents per foot) on their claims, and make them Real estate, than to let them lay idle until they are jumpable, and jumped, and then rush headlong into a never-ending lawsuit!

The "Gold Cañon" Company are working on the "Ore Flat" lode, but it is hard to tell what their prospects are, as they are great hands to "blow"; but, if one is to believe "Mah-i-ass"—as the Indians call him—they have got a big thing.

There are parties building a house on the Smith & Seely ranch, on Cherry Creek, which is situated about four miles North of the Cañon, in Steptoe Valley. The place above referred to is owned by Capt. Smith, and Serg't. Seely of Company B, 3d Cav., C. V. Mr. P. Wagan has built a fine saloon here, and has it fitted up in first class style.

The holidays passed off quietly, save that a few got gloriously drunk—though, not "fighting drunk." Their motto appeared to be:

"We'll all drink stone blind,
Pagan, fill up the bowl."

Their boisterous revelry may have astonished "the natives," but it didn't disturb the peaceful slumbers of Frost Rock.

Take Notice!

ROSENBAUM & NEWMAN sell only good fresh beef, at reasonable rates.—when we conclude to sell half starved Steers—we'll be able to reduce prices—but we will not offer THAT kind to OUR customers just yet, at any price.
